

3-14-2006

Cabrera to read at U of M Bookstore

University Relations

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.morris.umn.edu/urel_news

Recommended Citation

University Relations, "Cabrera to read at U of M Bookstore" (2006). University Relations News Archive. Paper 1760.
http://digitalcommons.morris.umn.edu/urel_news/1760

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the External Relations at University of Minnesota Morris Digital Well. It has been accepted for inclusion in University Relations News Archive by an authorized administrator of University of Minnesota Morris Digital Well. For more information, please contact skulann@morris.umn.edu.

UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA
MORRIS

Contact

Melissa Weber, Director of Communications
Phone: 320-589-6414, weberm@morris.umn.edu

Jenna Ray, Editor/Writer
Phone: 320-589-6068, jrray@morris.umn.edu

Cabrera to read at U of M Bookstore

*Summary: University of Minnesota, Morris Professor of Spanish and Ecuadorian novelist Vicente Cabrera Funes will read from his fourth novel, Los malditos amantes de Carolina, at 2 p.m. Monday, April 3, at the University of Minnesota Bookstore.*

(March 14, 2006)-University of Minnesota, Morris Professor of Spanish and Ecuadorian novelist Vicente Cabrera Funes will read from his fourth novel, Los malditos amantes de Carolina, at 2 p.m. Monday, April 3, at the University of Minnesota Bookstore, located in Coffman Memorial Union on the University's Minneapolis campus. Also reading from portions of the book that they translated into English will be Stacey Parker Aronson, Tom Turner and James Wojtaszek, all UMM Spanish faculty.

Cabrera grew up in Ecuador and took much of his schooling at a boarding school run by Jesuits. While there, he wrote diaries and would take turns writing chapters of stories with his friend, Luis Guerra Bravo. After boarding school, Cabrera moved to Quito, and studied law at the Catholic University for four years. He then moved to the United States and attended the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, where he earned his master's and doctoral degrees in Spanish literature. Cabrera moved to Colorado to teach Spanish literature, before heading to Ecuador for two years to write for three newspapers. He returned to the United States, to Lake Forest College near Chicago, before accepting a position at UMM, where he has been a full professor since 1987.

"I like to make literature of my life," said Cabrera. "It's not that my literature is an autobiography, but rather that my novels are mirrors that reflect my life and the lives of others."

Cabrera strongly values his culture and language and feels it is an integral part of his work. "Nostalgia has provoked my writing, the need to be connected to my hometown, to my region, and to my country through my native tongue," he said.

Los malditos amantes de Carolina is a series of chronicles kept by different characters in a book concerning a particularly fascinating and captivating woman. The chroniclers start out with Federico Solis Ampudio, but after much trouble and internal conflict, he passes the writings along to his intimate friend, Carmelo. But not even Carmelo can cope with the stories and, after he disappears, they are found and continued by Carmelo's daughter, Eugenia. In the end the publisher is confused as to whether or not he should allow new additions to the already published chronicles, because so many people have meddled with them.

Cabrera will also present a reading in the Fargo-Moorhead area on April 22 and in October 2006 at the Chicano Latino Writer's Festival, to be held at the public library in St. Paul. To find out more about Vicente Cabrera's books, consult Cabrera. His books are available at the University of Minnesota Bookstore, the Resource Center of the Americas, 3019 Minnehaha Ave, Minneapolis, MN 55406 and The Latin American Bookstore, 204 North Geneva St., Ithaca, N.Y. 14850.

[Photo by Danter's Photography, Morris]

Through personal and academic discovery, the University of Minnesota, Morris provides opportunities for students to grow intellectually, engage in community, experience environmental stewardship and celebrate diversity. A renewable and sustainable educational experience, Morris prepares graduates for careers, for advanced degrees, for lifelong learning, for work world flexibility in the future, and for global citizenship. Learn more about Morris at morris.umn.edu or call 888-866-3382.